Contact list—Newspapers in Education (NIE) and other education outreach

North Carolina newspapers serve young readers and support schools and education in different ways—delivering newspapers in bulk to classrooms (with print, electronic edition, and other apps) providing curricula and training to support the use of newspapers for instruction, offering education coverage and/or special features, conducting tours and providing speakers, supporting career days and spelling bees, offering grants, using technology to deliver news and interact with readers and/or working with other businesses and agencies in the community to strengthen education.

Find out about state-level efforts to support newspapers and education:
