

Now! Expanded and Updated!

The North Carolina Media Law Handbook

The 2007 expanded edition of the North Carolina Media Law Handbook is just off the presses and ready for shipment to your newsroom.

The new edition (available in both a newly enlarged print format and on compact disc) adds new chapters on copyright and advertising regulation to updated information on libel, privacy, access to public documents and meetings, access to courts, the journalist's privilege and the North Carolina court system.

The handbook, first published in 1992, is edited by NCPA General Counsel Amanda Martin, Counsel Emeritus Hugh Stevens and Professor Cathy Packer of the UNC School of Journalism and Mass Communication. Each chapter was researched and written by an attorney or academician who volunteered his or her time, including attorneys Jon Buchan, John Bussian and Mark Prak and UNC Professors Ruth Walden, Andy Bechtel, Michael Hoefges and James C. Drennan.
